Broadcast Recap

The Hamilton Fish Institute and its Consortium partners will present the fourth in a series of national satellite videoconferences on school safety on April 11, 2002.

The videoconference, entitled School-wide Education for Violence Prevention, will present discussions about several strategies for school-wide education that have been used in programs that the Hamilton Fish Institute has determined to be effective for violence prevention. Prerecorded presentations and members of a live, interactive panel will discuss elements of effective school-wide strategies. You may view the conference via a satellite downlink location. For more information visit: www.hamfish.org/broadcast.

Audience

This broadcast is designed for educators, school administrators, boards of education, parents, law enforcement agencies, government officials and policymakers, youth services organizations, community agencies, public health professionals, and all others interested in school safety.

You may register on-line to view the videoconference at www.hamfish.org/broadcast or complete and return the form on the right panel of this brochure.

About the Institute

The Hamilton Fish Institute, administered by the George Washington University Institute for Education Policy Studies, evaluates school violence prevention methods to determine what works and what can be replicated to reduce violence in America’s schools and their communities. For more information, visit our web site at www.hamfish.org.

Registration

If you would like to coordinate and facilitate a downlink site in your community, please complete the registration form and submit it by April 4, 2002. You must register to receive broadcast coordinates. If you are unable to host a site, but would still like to view the videoconference, please contact us for sites registered in your area.

To view the program, you will need a facility that has a steerable satellite dish, capable of receiving the coordinates. The broadcast will be available on C-Band and Ku-band.

Agencies to contact in your community to schedule a viewing site are cooperative extension offices, community colleges, local school systems, universities, and local cable television companies. For more information, go to www.hamfish.org/broadcast.

Site Facilitation

Facilitating a downlink site is easy and presents a good opportunity to network with local organizations or agencies. Each coordinator/facilitator will receive a Participant Packet, Facilitator Guide, and Technical Information Guide a week before the broadcast. You are requested to copy the Participant Packet to distribute to each of your site’s participants on the day of the broadcast.

Video Tape It!

The broadcast may be videotaped for use as a future resource. To obtain an edited videotape of this or previous broadcasts, please visit the Hamilton Fish Institute web site at www.hamfish.org/broadcast/after April 11.

No rights are reserved by the Hamilton Fish Institute or its contractor, the Eastern Kentucky University Violence Prevention Project. This broadcast will be closed-captioned for the hearing impaired.
